

A red windmill with four white-framed windows stands in a field of tall grass. In the background, two deer are visible, one standing and one in motion. The sky is overcast and grey.

Here is a basic truth:

To do
anything,
we must first
believe it can be done.

DAVID J. SCHWARTZ